

What Triggers Eczema?

Eczema is a condition that makes skin red, inflamed and itchy.

Changes in humidity/temperature

Sweat

Harsh detergents

High bacteria load on skin

Airborne allergens

Allergenic foods

Stress

What To Do?

Check with your child's paediatrician to determine the correct cause of his eczema

Keep track of his daily routine to identify the triggers

Avoid exposure to the triggers

Use clinically-proven moisturisers (fragrance- and perfume-free) for longer lasting moisturisation

What's your skin type?

COMBINATION SKIN

Features both oily & dry areas, typically with an oily T-zone [Forehead chin & nose] & dry cheek

DRY SKIN

Lacks sufficient moisture & natural oils, resulting in a tight, flaky & sometimes rough texture.

OILY SKIN

Characterized by excess serum production, leading to a shiny appearance & potential for acne.

Functions of Skin

Epidermis

Melanin is one of the several pigments found in the epidermis, which acts as the skin's outermost layer of defence and a waterproof shield.

Dermis

The dermis is the layer that is found below the epidermis. In addition to being composed of hair follicles and sweat glands, it is composed of dense connective tissue.

Hypodermis

After this layer comes the dermis, which is succeeded by deeper subcutaneous tissue that is composed of fatty tissue and connective tissue.
